

Get Well Soon Boris!

PM thanks boy, 6, for drawing get-well card

SUPERHERO: PM holds his welcome greeting

BORIS JOHNSON has written a letter of thanks to a six-year-old boy who sent him a picture of a rainbow when he was battling coronavirus.

The get-well message from Thomas Johnson was seen all over the world as the Prime Minister was seen clutching it as he recovered from the illness.

The lad drew the rainbow at school to support the NHS as mum Aimmie is a theatre nurse.

He was attending lessons during the lockdown as his dad is also a key worker.

Communications engineer Gary said: "Thomas returned from school with his card in a sealed envelope, so we just posted it off to 10 Downing Street without actually seeing his work."

The family of Prestatyn, north Wales, was not expecting the PM to find the time to pen a reply until the post arrived.

Gary said: "It was a real surprise when Thomas received the letter. He was very cool about it. I think me and his mum were more excited."

The Tory leader wrote: "Thank you so much for the wonderful message and good wishes you sent me when I was unwell. The letters and cards I received really cheered me up. Thank you also to you and your family for all you are doing to keep yourselves and others safe."

Now Thomas's parents plan to get the letter framed and hang it on his bedroom wall "alongside his other superheroes".

Prestatyn Hub

Mayor of Prestatyn and Meliden, Cllr Tony Flynn met Mrs Vernon at the Prestatyn Hub earlier this week. Bodnant Community School has been the Hub School for children of key workers from Ysgol Clawdd Offa, Hiraddug, Penmorfa and Bodnant since the lockdown. Cllr Flynn thanked Mrs Vernon on behalf of the Town Council for everything that she and her staff had been doing for the community. Mrs Vernon explained that children are sent work via the 'SeeSaw' App and said, "parents have been wonderful in accessing the work with their children". She also thanked staff for their hard work and dedication.

We are sending each of our wonderful pupils a sunflower seed, which we would like them to plant and care for until we are all back together in school again!

This seed from us for you to grow,
You plant it, water it, and then you will know,
How taking care of something small,
Can make you smile and feel ten feet tall!
